

Two her still, if his affection was sincere—and more to that effect. She further related that she had consented to meet him at an early hour the next morning. (perhaps at this very moment his happiness is complete) and, for his peace and her own, to grant him all. Afterwards, she thought, (do you hear me, Lauretta) afterwards, this affair de cœur would soon be at an end. (This is what the French ladies call passer les caprices.) In conclusion, she timidly begged for—absolution, beforehand! It would be so comforting! and she obtained it from the holy man! How has this little history pleased you, my love? continued the marquis, raising himself from his horrible seat, on which no sign of motion was discernible.

“Of a truth,” he proceeded, in a sportive tone, “our reverend pastors are somewhat too indulgent to the tender passion. I speak of the greater number of them. No doubt our excellent old friend and spiritual counsellor, Father Gregorio, would have taken a fair lady to task in a different way; if you, for example, Lauretta had—As he spoke, he slowly returned the pillow to its place, and dashed aside the coverlet. Before him lay the architect, Giulio Balzetti! He had ceased to breathe.

“Have you been lately to confession, Lauretta?” asked the marquis. “There, you have pins in your mouth, though I have so often warned you against the practice! Tell me, is it long since you were at confession?” he proceeded, in a somewhat louder tone.

“Not long,” returned his wife, with almost stifled accent.

“Apropos,” resumed the marquis, again hiding the hard and frightfully distorted features with the counterpane, “we are to go together to the grand ceremony of the Church of the Holy Magdalen. Precisely at twelve the procession will commence, and I must take my place that hour. I can delay no longer.”

He stepped into the dressing-room. His wife was reclined in a large arm chair, her luxuriant raven locks hanging in a wild disorder about her neck, a deathlike paleness overspread her cheeks and forehead, and both hands rested on her knees.

“What ails thee my child?” said the marquis, with an air of deep concern, and with unaltered cordiality of tone. “You have risen too early this morning, and it must be fatiguing to make your toilette without assistance. Has not Rebecca been summoned? Shall I ring for her?”

He touched the bell-string; then approaching his wife, he imprinted a kiss on her forehead and left the room.

At mid-day, while all the bells of the city were chiming together in a festive discordance, the marquis, drawn by four horses richly caparisoned, drove through the arched gateway of the place, where a troop of bedizened pages, lacqueys, chassours, and running footmen awaited the arrival of the lord and lady.

But a short interval elapsed when the marquis, attired in a magnificent court suit, the star of knighthood glittering on his breast, was seen descending the broad marble staircase. In one hand he carried his hat; with the other he led, with a ceremonious courtesy, his young, beautiful, and almost unconscious wife. Her face was of the hue of death, stone cold and rigid as the statuesque; she glided with a spirit like motion. His countenance was lit up with a peculiar brightness.

The attendants flew to their several posts; the carriage emerged from the court yard, and moved at a slow pace through the crowded streets and squares; while not a few passengers by, as they stood still to contemplate the passage of the noble pair, exclaimed, involuntarily, “There goes a loving couple!”

The absence of Balzetti was the subject of general remark at the church.

No one suspected that on the day of the fête to which his presiding genius had imparted the chief éclat, the artist lay cold and stiff in death; with livid and frightfully distorted visage, amid a confused heap of robes, lace, slippers, and band-boxes, on the floor of a lady’s dressing room; or that his body was at midnight, on the back of a mule, by a confidential servant of the marchioness, taken to a neighboring gorge of the mountain, and hurled from the precipice into the torrent beneath.

A convert of the Magdalen was endowed with a considerable sum, for masses for the repose of his soul.

Don Gregorio, the popular father-confessor of the aristocratic world, was missing soon afterwards; but he was allowed to pine away the remainder of his days in a monastery of Canadose, whither he had been conveyed by the influence of the marquis.

As may be surmised the confessional box, No. 6, was removed from its place.

The marquis never once alluded to the foregoing transaction in the presence of his wife. In society, and at home, he continued to deport himself towards her with the most perfect courtesy—at times, indeed with a tenderness altogether foreign from his character; but within her chamber he never again set foot.

AN EDITOR IN JAIL.—The Georgetown Herald comes to us dressed in mourning, and upon looking for the cause of the funeral appearance, we find that the editor has been committed to jail by some municipal tribunal for refusing to testify before it as to whom he had seen buying and drinking liquor at the hotels in the month of May; the ground of his refusal being that by testifying he would criminate himself and incur the infamy of an informer.—Com.

THE JAIL BIRD’S SONG.

AIR—Oh cruel was the jackall who took us off to jail!

ARRANGED FOR THE PIANO BY SPOT DUMAS.

Respectfully dedicated to the Board of Trustees; their Jaybird, Judge and Jackall!

The town was in a fidget, the Trustees in a fever! Because they could not bring two freemen to their knees! When spoke a pompous, learned M. D., his very stomach swelling—To think that he, his fellow men, could keep from out their dwelling!

Chorus—On turel, turel, turel, turel, turel, turel! Oh cruel was the jackall who took us off to jail! And cruel was that learned M. D., who [thro] his teeth did mutter—“They shall not have a drop of drink!” [for e’n a bit of supper!”

Quoth he, “I represent the Board, and Jonathan, who’s shrewd as fox, and born in Yankee nation! Should on my head bring sundry knocks, from men in higher station!”

Chorus—“That Yankee chap [said he] is keen, as any other Yankee, And tho’ with dimes he’s mean as broth, I’ll surely get a ‘thankee!’” His satellites, obedient crew, subservient to his call, His dirty work were pleas’d to do—to vote for none or all!

Chorus—Shrewd Jonathan he gave the wink; the M. D. gave the cue! The tools were not allowed to think—they only had to do The voting, which shrewd Jonathan, assisted by M. D., Had said must be performed by them if they would bend the knee Of certain fearless freemen, who, raised in sunny clime, Could not conceive that drinking drams did constitute a crime! And turning from the so-called Judge, of whom they were true scorners! With manly courage, briefly said—“Sir, we are no informers!”

Chorus—The M. D. whispered softly, to his pliant tool, the Judge, “Just put them in the county jail, from which don’t let them budge! For men who deal in whiskey, in the kingdom have no lot! And he who takes a horn or two, is verily a sot!”

Chorus—“Our facile friend, Attorney P., than whom no man is braver! Will lend his aid for a fat fee, although his voice may quaver! He is the man for war of words, and all such harmless pother; But fight of a more dangerous kind, he leaves to his old father!”

Chorus—“Our Marshal is a man of might, and well he knows his duty; ‘Tis true he’s not much in a fight, and loves the dark skin beauty! But when our work he’s told to do, tho’ dirty and disgraceful! He is the man to put ‘em thro’, if dimes he gets a handful!”

Chorus—“We’d rather have a ‘gambling shop,’ and ‘counters’ many! Ay, even ‘50 Bowdy Shops!’ than grant them license any! And if they will not testify—become most base informers! Why send them to the jail to rot! and d—d be all the mourners!”

Chorus—A crowd, self-styled, ‘respectable’ was forth with then convened, Who vow’d this precious quartette, must by their might be screened, From all the pains and penalties inflicted by the masses, When “Upper Tendon” undertakes, to write themselves down asses!

Chorus—

For the Herald, “A little power is a dangerous thing,” Rashly, nor oftentimes truly doth man pass judgment on his brother For he seeth not the springs of the heart, the reasons of the mind!”

The footsteps of indignant worth were tracked by a “jackall” crew.

And have you really been in jail, Mr. Editor, in a bona fide prison, our common jail, incarcerated with an alleged fraticide! this because you declined to be an informer! Mirable dieu!—What are we, once styled “Freedom’s sons,” to be subjected to hereafter?

Verily, truly, ‘tis an outlawed age in which we live, and we must be excused if we indulge in the exclamation

O justice once the pride of every Court Where is thy grave, that we may weep O’er thy unimely end. Or tell us, If perchance this crime ungenial Thou swayest thy sceptre neath another sun.

But excuse me, that I did not with a profound obeisance, congratulate you on your triumphant restoration to life, liberty, pure air, free thought and the free use of the means of comfort, as devised by man, endowed with a capacity by nature and her God—Permit me to hope that your short, (and I am informed very pleasant,) sojourn in our comfortable jail, has only added new vigor to your pen, by which you may use to the best advantage these available subjects—Judge, prosecutor, Board of Trustees and their delectable Marshal included, to make an even number.

Justice had never been meted then till you so courageously espoused their cause in the last number of your paper, and I can with entire confidence tender you the thanks of the community for the “good measure pressed down and running over” which you have so generously apportioned them in your columns. It is but fair that men, so earnest in the discharge of duty, so active in efforts for the weal of the people, (to say nothing of the careful management of the Town Treasury) ought to receive their recompense of reward; and who shall so efficiently meet them their dues as their County Editor, for whom they have manifested such kindly feelings of late.—You have, (as I discovered in a recent visit to the country) secured the approbation of an immense majority, by your independent and candid administration of wholesome truths to the diseased imaginations of these individuals.

This is a most auspicious season for an electioneering tour, but if you will pardon my frankness, I will remark, far more propitious for a ci-devant prisoner, than any one of the individuals connected with the respected ‘Board’ or favorable to their late action; for I had the pleasure of observing not a few ominous indications of a very decided character.

The people seem to be ‘right side up’ in this matter, though most of those with whom I conversed were stern temperance men, yet none so ultra as to connive at the assumption of the right by these petty town authorities to seize and imprison a free white man, ad infinitum, without bed or board, because upon a true principle of honor he refuses to render himself odious to established public sentiment by betraying a friend.

It strikes me this Court is not altogether unlike, in its modus operandi, to an obdurate and celebrated institution, by the regulations of which, any man might be seized and tortured who possessed the moral courage, the mental firmness to a bide by his sentiments, in defiance of judge or jury, law or injunction.

Do you remember a tale the Spectator tells of two rival bellies? If you do you perceive that I liken the Editor on one part, and the Town Inquisitors on the other, to these bellies, and make, envy and malice the foundation of this affair, comparing your persecutors to the ill-natured Daphne, who finding all other maneuvers fail to effect her purpose of humiliating the successful beauty, at length, happily for her intent, bought her to dress her servant in exact imitation of her costume, and by exposing this sight to an immense congregation in the presence of her triumphant rival, accomplished her heart’s desire.

Never give up, let them have the best you’ve got and many true friends are prepared to stand by you while there’s a shot left, and we’ll all help you shout to the last

I’ll never give up, though the jail door may rattle And jury and judge their wrath o’er me burst, I stand like a rock—and the jail or men’s rattle Little can harm me though doing their worst.

But for fear I weary your patience, I’ll make my adieu, without any apology for the liberty I have taken in addressing you, inasmuch as true friendship and sincere advocacy of your cause prompted this.

Yours &c.

EPSILON.

To the Citizens of Georgetown.

I am one of your midst. Am interested in whatever affects the prosperity of our town, and have been looking at what has been going on among us lately. I mean the agitation of the liquor question. You all know very well that the Board of Trustees have lately took it in their heads to stop Pratt and Barkley from selling any more liquor, and have done their best to effect their object, but so far, with no approach to success. They have sent three men to jail—to no purpose, it would seem. Have made heap of people mad that ain’t in a good humor yet, and they haven’t yet stopped any drinking, tho’ they have been hammering at it all this year and last. It is very true they have meant well; no one, if any, denies this. They are known to be the right kind of men, and would not do anything wrong—knowingly. They believe, that by refusing licenses they are doing the will of the people of Georgetown. No doubt they think so, but your humble servant don’t, and he thinks it can be shown he is right. How will I show it? Why just ask the first ten men you meet how they think about it; nearly every man will say the Taverners ought to have license. People travelling through town and living in the country think they ought to have some say in this affair. They say these Taverners are intended as much or more for their comfort and convenience as for the town people. And I tell you all for truth that I know country people are some of ‘em afraid to come to town now for fear of being made a witness or a jurymen; some of ‘em are going to Lexington on account of it certain, and I know it.

The trustees I am informed would give the taverners license if they did not feel that they were pledged to go against it when elected. Here is the stumbling block. Well now on this point just let me respectfully tell them that in that they are mistaken and honestly too na doubt, that is to a great extent. It may be asked how I know it. Because at the time they were elected, the license question was not made an issue, and the proof of that is, I can show 20 names or more, that were not twice or three times that number who voted for the present board or most of them, who are now decidedly and unequivocally in favor of the license to the taverners. These are facts; I have heard men talk enough. I profess to be able to know a thing as well as any body else if I can know at all, and can tell the truth.

These tavern keepers may sell more drinks, but not half as many quarts as other people, and have to take care of all the drunkards at that, matters not who makes them drunk; and they are not more able to do it than other people.

Well then says one what are you going to do about it? What is to be done? What do you propose? Well just this one of two things. Rather than have any more law-suits and quarrels and in order to restore peace and stop the heavy expense of feeling lawyers, judges, town marshals, &c., let us by a vote settle this thing and take the tavern keeper’s money and put it in the town treasury and give him license; and let us have it well understood too in the event of this vote being taken that the Tavern Keepers will abide by the decision, else we won’t take the vote.

If not a vote then the other of the two things is, first let the present board settle by resigning, and let a new board be elected on the question clear and clean of Tavern license and let us have the Tavern Keepers pledged to mind whatever this board says if they give ‘em license or don’t; let them agree to stand by their bargain; I am fully satisfied one of them will stand to one of these propositions and I believe the other will too if you don’t try to press him too tight. What do you all say now? Let’s settle every thing peacefully, for I am afraid we shall do some harm some way soon if we go on as we are now.

CITIZEN.

For the Herald.

Every authoritative encroachment and depredation upon the personal and social rights of mankind, has asserted the public good as its pretext. This has been at once the plea, and the plume of despotism, in every age and nation of the world. The autocrats of the earth have affected to wear it patiently, as the natural guardians of the people. It is the same with our city fathers, who, out of tender and parental regard for us; poor deluded creatures, withhold every personal and social right we possess, over which they have power, and assert the public good as its justification and its aim. No community was ever impoverished by excessive taxation, without pleading the public good as an excuse. The public good, can be as well assumed and plead by the many headed tyrants of Georgetown, as by the autocrat of Russia; the passive obedience and non resistance of the minority in both instances is insisted upon as a duty, the violation of which, is to be summarily punished with the forfeiture of liberty. Yet this passive minority, with the deficiency only of a single vote, may be equal in numbers, in intelligence, and in every human virtue to the despotic majority, which can deprive them of every right. The addition of one man only, endows the majority with the one man power, of the Czar, and reduces the minority to the political condition of his vassal slaves.

Is this the controlling principle of American Government? Does not nature loudly proclaim to every one worthy the name of man, that she has reserved rights above the legislation of a despotic majority? Is he man, is he patriot, who will not defend his rights?

LOUIS CO., Mo. May 10th, 1854.

MR. FRENCH.

By this time you may have come to the conclusion, that the western prairie winds have formed a peculiar attachment to my garments, and that as I would not give up my raiment, in an effort to take them off the winds have taken me off in them. But I am happy to inform you that you are mistaken, and that I am yet on terra firma, among the living, and in reasonably health. I hope that you are yet alive, and not dead, and in good health, and that you may long live to comfort and enjoy your young wife, and edit the Herald.

Since I wrote to you, I took a railroad ride on the 24th April from Greenfield to the capital of Hoosierdom. It is a beautiful city of about 16000 inhabitants. (The size of towns will be given as I was informed) its streets are very wide and level, and it is destined to make a considerable city. There are eight railroads running into it, and about fifty arrivals and departures of trains of cars, per diem. The union passenger depot is an excellent building 420 feet long and about 120 wide. It is covered with a self supporting roof. Indianapolis may be justly called the railroad city or emporium of the west. The Indiana state buildings in and about the city, are an honor to the State. The deaf and dumb asylum. The lunatic asylum, and the Masonic grand lodge building, are magnificent piles of architecture. The State house is a pretty fair building. Situated in a beautiful part of the city, in the center of a lot of about 4 acres. It has in it a fine library. I saw in it also, what I was informed was a revolutionary sword. Gen. F. Marion’s sword, a Mexican saddle, lance, pistols and a standard bearer’s coat of mail or armour. It was composed of a brass cap and two pieces of brass so shaped as to enclose the body. I left Greenfield on the 25th April rolling through some fine country and a host of little towns on the National road, up to Cloverland a little town 11 miles east of Terre Haute. There I learned that the Washab was out of its track and that the day before a pair of horses were drowned in the west bound. I therefore rode up 7 miles to Deekes ferry, paid a native fifty cents to conduct me through the bottom to the river, thence over on into Illinois. On the 26th of April on inquiry I found I was in Edgar county, Illinois in 8 miles of Paris, its county town about 1200 inhabitants. I then passed on through Coals, Moultrie, Christian and Sangamon counties up to Springfield. The eastern portion is mostly composed of large prairies, a great country for wind; the soil very rich black loam, very black, generally too level for a Kennebecian. Lands are not yet very high but rising fast. Springfield, the capital of the state and Sang Co., is a tolerably handsome city. Some one there said it contained 9000 inhabitants others about 6000 which I suppose is nearer correct. It is improving very fast and will make a considerable city. Most of the state buildings are at Jacksonville. The state house is a good building of stone. There are I think as yet only two railroads to Springfield. The central railroad from Chicago to Cairo, passes through Decatur east of Springfield I was informed that 7 per cent of the gross income of that road is to go into the state treasury, which will greatly diminish the state tax. I next rode through Monard county, and Blessburg its capital, about 800 inhabitants. Hence through Cass county. In it near a little town named Virginia is some of the most beautiful looking country that I saw east of Illinois river. I next passed on through Bardstown its capital on the Illinois river, about 2500 inhabitants. On the 4th of May I reached Rushville, Scheider county. Here I met with Elder H. Osborn. The old folks about your town will be glad to hear of him. And especially Uncle John Applegate to hear of him. His health is not very good though he preaches two or three sermons a week. I saw here also Levi Lusk; he is well known to many of the church members and Masons of your town. He looks well and is doing well. From thence I rode on to this place. The land on the west side of the Illinois river between it and the Mississippi river is generally very good. Quincy the county town of Adams county will make a considerable city. It has a handsome location on the Mississippi river and will soon have a railroad leading into the interior of the State. It has now about 1200 inhabitants. The western people are great folks. They push everything by steam and lightning. They spend their opinion freely of the Ward trial. They say Kentucky had no well have no law; so I think. The people of Kentucky will be compelled to adopt some measures to secure a just administration of her laws or she is forever disgraced. I do not like for it to be said of the land of my birth, that these rich men murder with impunity. The Nebraska bill has excited some of the western people very much. Though I think the opposition principally grow out of fanaticism and a misunderstanding of the object of the bill. I think too if those ministers of the gospel, who remonstrated and petitioned the Senate against the bill, would spend their time and labour in preaching the gospel. They would do more good. If they would feel as much concern about the division of the church, and the dominion of sin as they do about American slavery And if they would preach and pray as much about the distracted state of Zion and the atonement of the works of the devil as they do about slavery they would do more good. The abolitionists are constantly exciting a feeling of insubordination in the country that is reaching all ranks in society. The hired servants in the free states have partaken the same spirit. They must have such wages as will oppress their employer, and if you huff them they are off; children are under the same influence you hear them say to their parents,—Yes and No. And old men, Jim, John, George, &c. And matrimony partake the same spirit. Hence in the free states, we have the women rights party. And this government men ever divide into two parties, the religious men, and the Government the example by dividing into North and South churches. May the Lord help us. May this government triumph over all fanaticism and opposition, and long stand to bless the world.

PA novel kind of newspaper enterprise has been started in Paris. This is a daily telegraphic bulletin, for which persons subscribe as they do for newspapers. For 25 francs a month, the subscriber receives news of all the foreign arrivals at Liverpool and Southampton. For 100 francs a month, he receives all the foreign and war news; and for 225 francs, all the Bourses, all the arrivals, all the prizes current of breadstuffs, &c., and all the rates of Exchange.—These despatches are private, and are collected and forwarded by the correspondents of the Company. As fast as they arrive at Paris they are lithographed. A man can lithograph, in the hasty way it is done for this service, nearly as fast as he can write; and thus one copy will yield enough for the whole subscription list. The paper cut and prepared beforehand, already bears the government stamp; and with such celerity is the whole operation effected, that an edition of printed bulletins is in course of distribution about the city in twelve minutes after the news they bear has slipped off the wires. The intelligence received for 225 francs a month, would cost, if ordered and received despatch by despatch, 8,000 francs.

Would any honorable man require a friend or even a stranger to criminate himself, or become an informer on pain of fine or imprisonment? No sir! And yet the Board of Trustees their tools and satellites, forced us to choose the alternative! And they, like Brutus, are all honorable men in a horn!

Just as we expected, the town treasury is as scarce of funds as a certain Judge is of brains. We happened to have a small claim upon it, (not for juries, however) and on presenting it, the Treasurer, assuring us that he was bare of town funds, referred us to the efficient Town Marshal, who, he assured us, ought to have plenty, derived from fines and taxes! Well, we called upon that gentleman and though a little cross-grained and uncommunicative, he assured us that the town authorities were in debt to him! but being a little more shrewd than the worthy Treasurer, he paid us out of what he asserted to be his own private funds, procured from a friend near at hand. We understand that there are various other claims against the town, the payment of which is denied by both Treasurer and Marshal, for lack of town funds. We presume that this difficulty is explained by the expenses growing out of the blue law trials; which, judging from the fees that the Marshal boasts of, must be something considerable; doubtless the pliant tools of a portion of the Board deem it advisable to secure their perquisites as they go, lest a more honest but less pliant Board should not be willing to countenance such shameful depredations upon the pockets of the tax payers of the town. By-the-by, judging from our knowledge of some of the individuals who compose the Board, they would not be so liberal in incurring costs for blue law trials if the money had to come out of their pockets instead of out of the pockets of the tax payers.

It has been suggested, and we deem the suggestion a good one, that the ultra portion of the Board of Trustees, the police Judge and the Town Marshal resign the positions they have respectfully disgraced and come before the people for reelection! by so doing the present discordant state of feeling in the town would be reconciled and the question definitely settled as to whether or not the taxpayers of the town were willing to endure the outrageous exercise of power by the Board (itself a tool of the "higher law" party) and its pliant tools, under color of law. The "second sober thought of the people" is ever correct, and we opine that if this course was adopted, the honorable gentleman to whom we have allusion would all be re-elected—in a horn!

We neglected in our last, to notice our obligations to Robt. Woolly, Esq., for his prompt and generous efforts in our behalf vs. the tyrannical Board of Trustees. That he was successful was a matter of course; our cause was just, and few disinterested and unprejudiced Judges or juries can withstand his eloquence. Fortunately for Scott County Judge, BEN. FINNELL, Esq., was unprejudiced, and stood on independent ground. Had he been as ultra as Judge Stevenson on the temperance question, we might still have been illegally imprisoned, despite of the eloquence of Mr. Woolly—a gentleman who, if we mistake not, is destined to play a prominent part in the field of jurisprudence as well as in the political field. Success to him wherever the bent of his genius and talent may carry him!

Our young friend Richardson, than whom we know of no more polite and courteous gentleman, designs teaching dancing school in this burg, at times and upon terms mentioned in his advertisement. Without derogation to any body else, we feel warranted in saying that Mr. R. is competent and well qualified to teach young America how to trip it on the fantastic toe, in a manner equal if not superior to any teacher of the art in the Western country. His education, experience and energy in keeping up with the fashion of the age, by his frequent visits to the East, enables us to speak with confidence of his abilities. See his card in another column.

Our friend of the Flag is slightly mistaken; it was not the Judge of the County Court who refused license to the Hotels—he is a gentleman and a scholar; but it was the Judge of the petty police Court, who, as a tool of the ultra and fanatical portion of the Board of Trustees, endeavored to coerce freemen to become informers. Judge Finnell, the County Judge, was the power that relieved us from imprisonment as foul as it was unwarranted. He, instead of censure deserves commendation for his act, which savored more of justice than of fanaticism! More reverse was true of the decision which put us there.

Col. James Speed Smith died at his residence in Madison county, on Tuesday week.

Excitement in Georgetown—Strange Proceedings.—The Editor of the Herald and other Citizens in Jail.

The people of Georgetown, Ky., are having an excited one of it just now, on account of the County Court having refused to grant licenses to retailers of the ardent. Several arrests have been made; and thus our esteemed friend French, editor of the Herald, and one or two other citizens have been thrown into jail for refusing to testify against their friends.

We know but little of the particulars; but it strikes us as something remarkably strange that so clever a gentleman as H. R. French, Esq., should be incarcerated in a prison by his fellow citizens, for merely refusing to bear witness against his neighbors; and we shall not be surprised to hear of his persecutors becoming heartily sick of the fun, before it is over. We are no friend to intemperance, nor the whiskey traffic, but we look upon the imprisonment of a brother editor, for so trivial an offense, as a high handed outrage upon the Fraternity, and an insult to the craft, from one end of the Union to the other; and we would advise the town Authorities to release him as soon as possible, if they would avoid hearing the fulminations of the press from one end of the Union to the other, bursting over their heads. Let him out.—Flag.

Hit 'em again! friend Pike; they have got but few friends in this county who are willing to stand up and defend their high handed and outrageous proceedings; and you cannot deal your blows too heavily for their deserts. An occasional 24 pounder from your well manned and efficient battery will aid us materially in conjunction with our small shot, in demolishing the breast works of the cowardly and piratical craft by which we are now assailed; the navigators of which, with the will if not the power of an autocrat, are endeavoring to crush freedom by the infliction of Inquisitorial pains and penalties. Let them beware! or they may chance to kindle an Atto da fe in which some of them may play a prominent part.

Governor Wright, of Indiana, was in town on Friday last, being on a visit of a private nature, to our county. When the fact was announced, with commendable courtesy, the cannon was taken out and fired in his honor. The citizens were anxious to hear a speech from the Governor, but as he was here altogether in a private capacity, and on a mission of some delicacy, as public rumor has it, Kentucky chivalry decided that he should not be annoyed with any more prominent position than he desired to occupy. He sojourned at the Franklin House where a number of our citizens called to pay their respects to him. The Governor is a fine looking man; a conversationalist of remarkable power and evidently well worthy of the high consideration in which he is held by his fellow citizens of our Sister State of Indiana. We trust that his private mission may be crowned with success, and that he may long live to enjoy conjugal happiness with the companion of his choice, and the honors conferred and to be awarded to him by the enlightened and patriotic citizens of his own State.

It seems that we were misunderstood with reference to our Jailor. It is true, that as County Jailor, he was not authorized to provide town prisoners with any accommodations, nor did we seek any at his hands; but as a jailor and as a private individual, he treated us with all courtesy, and in his latter capacity offered us any accommodations. As our remarks last week were calculated, unexplained, to do him injustice, we cheerfully make the amende honorable.

A good joke transpired in the Court House on Tuesday. It has been currently reported that a member of the Board, in a speech, had said that he "would prefer to have 50 gambling shops, 50 counterfeiters or even 50 bawdy houses carrying on business in our midst, sooner than license the two Hotels." Mr. Bradley, in the course of his speech, quietly but satirically remarked, in alluding to the speech, "Men are differently constituted—some sir, are so constituted that they prefer women to wine! De gustibus non est disputandum!"

We have discovered very recently, that there is all difference imaginable between gazing from behind or before a grated door! This difference is simply this: On one side is unmeasured mirth; on the other immeasurable madness! In the latter case, he only consolation being "there's a good time coming, boys, wait a little longer!"

We find in one of our Ohio exchanges the following summary of her railroads:

"Ohio is divided into eighty-seven counties. The county seats of forty-six of these counties can be reached by railroads. Fifty-four counties are traversed by railroads. Twenty-six counties have roads surveyed, and most of them in process of construction—leaving but seven counties without roads in the State."

In justice to the party concerned, a member of the Board, of whom we have told, in another column, a rather pointed anecdote, we subjoin the following extract from a letter which we received from that gentleman on Saturday last, and for whom, personally, we entertain the highest respect and esteem, independent of his ultraism on one subject, and his connection with a corporate body more distinguished for venom than brain:

"I said—in my opinion, ten Bawdy houses, ten Faro banks, ten Roulette tables, and ten Counterfeiters in Georgetown would not be so injurious to society as two tipping houses." This was repeated as my honest and candid opinion of the magnitude of the one evil over all the others. This is a long language, but this is my opinion."

ESCAPE OF FOUR CONDEMNED CRIMINALS.—ONE RECAPTURED.—The four persons found guilty of having committed a murder in Woodford county, and under sentence of death, escaped from the jail at Versailles on Wednesday night. One of them, a white man named Watson, was retaken, but the other three, who were negroes, made their escape. The turnkey or jailor discovered it immediately, and threw a rock at Watson as he was in the act of climbing over the wall, which brought him down, and he was recaptured. A large posse started out from Versailles yesterday morning in pursuit of the negroes.

James D. Nourse, one of the Editors of the St. Louis Intelligencer, died in Cincinnati, of cholera on the 1st of June. He was a native of Nelson County, Ky., where he resided until a few months ago.—He was last year Editor of the Bardonia Herald. Mr. Nourse was a man of fine attainments. As the author of one or two romances, he was favorably known in Western Literature. He was universally esteemed for his social qualities and everywhere respected for his abilities.

Colonization Notice.
The Kentucky State Colonization Society will send an expedition from the State to Liberia, Nov. 1, 1854. All those residing in Kentucky, who intend going at that time, will write to Rev. A. M. CORWAN, Agent of the Kentucky State Colonization Society, Frankfort, Ky.

We would like to know the reason why a certain gentleman who told the Marshal, to "go to hell!" when he summoned him and who threatened to shoot, if an attachment was issued for him, is not brought into court? We are a law abiding citizen, and submit to the powers that be; yet we cannot testify to any more, if so much, as the party alluded to. Why is it, we say, that this gentleman is not brought in to court to testify? Is it because we are poor and he is rich? Or is it because we are known to be a law abiding citizen, and that it is known that he will draw blood if his private rights are assailed by the tool of a tyrannical board of Trustees? We only ask for information, and leave the solution of the question to the Town Marshal and the powers that be!

A runaway match took place in our town last Monday. The lady was the daughter of one of our most responsible citizens, and a most estimable lady; whilst the gentleman, though a very clever fellow is but little known to fame. We do not much approve of such matches; but as love is a principle which we stand to, and advocate, in all its phases, we cannot but wish the young couple God speed.

We wish it to be distinctly understood that we have been incarcerated in the common along with an individual charged with murder, without food or bedding, at the instance of the Board of Trustees, not because we advocate the licensing of taverns or coffee houses, for that is a question with which we have not meddled; not because we advocate the liquor traffic, for that traffic we have never approved; not because we drink ourselves whenever it suits us, for that is no one's business but our own. But simply and solely because we refused to betray the names of friends with whom we had drank, or whom we had seen drinking; ay, because we refused to disgrace ourselves—in our own eyes, and in the eyes of every true born son of the sunny clime, by becoming that most contemptible of all wretches in every grade of life, an informer!

The body of Slevin, of Louisville, whose disappearance we noticed some time since, has been found, without any marks of violence. He was found in the mud in the river, and is supposed to have been accidentally lost in going to his lodging house.

FOR THE HERALD.
Dear Sir:—No doubt a number of your readers will be willing to read a word in reference to the untimely death of A. S. LOWRY, which probably occurred on Wednesday morning, May 31st. The particulars of which so far as could be ascertained by the coroner's inquest, were that on Wednesday morning May 31st, he left the house of Mr. F. Withers, for Sqr. Stucker's, as he stated to Mr. W. previous to leaving, which was after he had taken his breakfast, nothing more is seen or known of him until the following Friday late in the evening, when he was found by Messrs D. Emerson & H. Wood, Esq., lying rather on the right side of his face and breast, with his right arm under his body and his head greatly inclined to the left. The spot on which he lay, is in a lane, about midway between the residences of Mr. F. Withers and that of Mrs D. Leach! the ground is very rough and stony and in a few feet of a common rail fence, off which he had most probably fallen, from the lateness of the hour at which he was found, an inquest was not held over him until Saturday morning, June 3rd, when the Coroner summoned a jury to make an inquest upon his body, which they most faithfully did, a physician was also summoned to make any and every examination which was thought proper in order to ascertain the causes of his death, and after a full and fair search for wounds, contusions, dislocations &c., the jury had no doubt, from all the evidence and research that died, came to his death from the effect of a fall, probably accidentally off a fence, which had caused incision over the right eye and a dislocation of the cervical vertebrae, no other marks of violence or injury were found upon him.

Having shrouded and placed him in his coffin he was carried for interment to the hospitable mansion of his bereaved and wounded parent. As to the cause or causes aside from the proximate, leading to, or rather preceding this fatal fall! perhaps it would be improper for one whose acquaintance with the dead was so slight, even to conjecture; but from his long civil connection and extended acquaintance with the people of the county, no doubt some may be found, who can say what has most probably led to this painful catastrophe. That man is the instrument in a good degree, of his own good or bad fortune, is but too true for the honor of poor fallen humanity.

The Fayette Fair of the Kentucky Agricultural and Mechanical Association, commences on Tuesday, September 12th, and will continue five days; the last day being exclusively devoted to sales.

To the Editors of the Lou. Journal:
GEORGETOWN, June 5, 1854.

GENTLEMEN: We have rich sport in Georgetown about these times; that is 'it is sport to us, but death to the frogs.' Our Herald is now edited in an office with gilded windows, and we expect something rich in the next number. French says he'll 'give 'em hell' whether in jail or out.

For some days, a contest has been going on here for supremacy between our police and our two taverns upon the liquor traffic. On Saturday last, in a prosecution for retailing without license, two of the witness refused to testify, on the ground that they would criminate themselves—and his Honor committed them to prison to remain until they would testify. Our friend French took the jug, and he is now editing the Herald where the dogs can't bite him. The other witness has applied for habeas corpus, and is now under the adjudication of Judge Finnell.

The Editor of the Georgetown Herald edits his last paper from the jail of Scott county, having been incarcerated for refusing to testify against the hotel-keepers of that place, who had been indicted for selling liquor without license. His paper is also clad in the habiliments of mourning "for," to use his own language, "the untimely and illegal execution of the ugly editor"—Obs CAGED AT LAST.—We learn from a reliable source that our neighbor of the Georgetown Herald, H. R. French, is in "durance vile"—incarcerated within the lonesome walls of his county Jail—"Most Potent," how thou art fallen! We hope thy "occupation is not gone"—and expect, in due time, to hear "a round unvarnished tale delivered, of the whole course of this injustice—what conjuration, and mighty magic you are charged withal.—Cynthian News.

W. D. Gailagler has retired from the editorial control of the Louisville Courier.

For the information of "outsiders," we would state that the Board of Trustees renew the face of the "blue law" trials this morning at 10 o'clock; on which occasion we shall probably appear for the second and last time!

AN Ounce of fact is worth a pound of theory; and the swarm of conclusive facts that cluster around that incomparable preparation, Hostell's German Bitters, prepared by Dr. C. M. Jackson, Philadelphia, establishing its value as a tonic and restorative, are such as would prevent incredulity itself from questioning its truth. In all cases of disease of the stomach, whether acute or chronic, it may be recommended for its soothing, cordial, and renovating influence. Dyspepsia, heartburn, loss of appetite, nausea, nervous tremors, relaxation and debility, &c., are relieved by the Bitters in a very short space of time; and a perseverance in their use never fails to work a thorough cure.

CONSUMPTION AND SPITTING OF BLOOD.—See the certificate of Mr. Turner H. Ramsey, for many years proprietor of the Farmers' Hotel, Frederickburg, Va., and late of the City Hotel, Richmond, Va.

Dr. John Minge, of the city of Richmond, and a regular physician, and of course opposed to what he called quack medicines, was obliged to say that its good effects in the case of Mr. Ramsey, were wonderful indeed. He had been given up by several physicians; had tried most of the quack medicines, and was on the verge of despair as well as the grave, when he tried Carter's Spanish Mixture. We refer the public to his full and lengthy certificate around the bottle, stating his cure. See advertisement.

A HAPPY LAND.—A writer from Florence says that in some respects Italy is the most delightful country in the world. It is a land, for example, where cleaning house, washing day, and all other such interesting epochs in the American calendar, are intolerable and unknown. The exemption from the great domestic evil of cleaning house is owing not so much to a love of dirt, as to the peculiar construction of the building. Thus, for instance, where the ceilings and the walls are frescoed, or the latter covered with silk or paper hangings, there is no need of whitewashing, and where the panels and doors are of marble and oak, there is no necessity for scouring paint. The ceilings and walls are kept clean by long handled brushes. The carpets there are fastened to rings in the floor, by means of large hooks in the binding, and thus can be raised and slid down again as noiselessly and easily as bed covers. In Italy a large portion of the house work, such as washing, cleaning windows, &c., is done at an early hour in the morning, before the family are awake for the day; and so quietly it is accomplished that to a stranger it seems as if the invisible wand of some mighty magician had changed all in the night.

FEMALE EDUCATION IN JAPAN.
In Japan as much care is bestowed on the education of the women as of the men. The science of the Almanac is esteemed one of the most important branches of school-learning, to avoid commencing a weighty undertaking on an unlucky day. At the age of fifteen year the boys have their heads shaved, and become thereby members of society. They also receive a new name at this time, and invariably upon every advance in rank the old cognomen is changed for a new one. In marrying, equality of rank between the contracting parties is the first requirement, and when no obstacle of this sort stands in the way, he declares his passion by attaching a branch of a certain shrub to the house of the young lady's parents. If this is neglected, so is his suit; if it is accepted so is the lot; and if the damsel wishes to put her reciprocity of this offer beyond a doubt, she forthwith blackens her teeth. Presents, as among most oriental nations, are now exchanged, and after great ceremony, burning her toys, to indicate that she is to be no longer childish, she is presented by her parents with a marriage dress and some articles of household furniture, among which are always a spinning-wheel, a loom, and the culinary implements required in a Japanese kitchen. All this bridal equipment is conveyed in great state to the bridegroom's house, and exhibited on the day of the wedding.

PAT AND THE OYSTERS.—Pat, who had just been translated, had been sent by his master to purchase a half-bushel of oysters, at the quay; but was absent so long that apprehension were entertained for his safety. He returned at last, however, puffing under his load in the most musical style.
"Where have you been?" exclaimed his master.
"Where have I been why, where should I be, but to fetch the oysters?"
And what in the name of St. Patrick kept you so long?
"Long by my soul, I think I have been pretty quick, considering all things!"
"Considering what things?"
"Considering what things? why, considering the gutting of the fish, to be sure!"
"Gutting what fish?"
"What fish? why, blar-ney-ows, the oysters!"
"What do you mean?"
"What do I mean? why, I mean that as I was resting down forment the Pickled Jerring; having a drop to comfort me, a gentleman axed me what I'd got in my sack."
"Oysters," said I.
"Let's look at 'em," says he, and he opens the bag. "Och! thunder and praties," says he, "who would you these?"
"It was Mick Carney," says I, "aboard the Pol Doodle smack."
"Mick Carney, the thief of the world! what a blackguard he must be, to give them to you without gutting."
"Ain't they gutted?" says I.
"Mischief a one," says he.
"Musha then," says I, "what'll I do?"
"Do! says he, 'I'd sooner do it myself than see you so abused.' And so he takes 'em in doors, and guts them nate and clean as you'll see, opening at the same time, his bag of oyster shells, that were empty as the head that bore them to the house."

VALUABLE PROPERTY FOR SALE.

THE subscriber wishes to sell The House and Lot in which he now resides, situated on Main Cross Street, in Georgetown, Ky, adjoining the Georgetown Hotel. The house is of brick, containing nine rooms, a back porch, the length of the house, besides kitchen, servant's rooms and all necessary out buildings, including stable, carriage house, &c., all in good repair; the lot fronts on main cross street 120 feet, and running back (in part) to Water street, and is considered one of the best pieces of property in the place; and from its locality, size and general appearance would make a first rate boarding house.

ALSO.—The frame house and lot opposite the above, situated on the east side of Main Cross street, fronting on said street 150 feet and going back 200 feet to a 30 feet street, and containing 1 of an acre; upon this lot there is a never failing spring of good water as is in the town. I consider this a superior lot of ground.

ALSO.—The TAN YARD property adjoining the last mentioned lot. Containing 1 of an acre and enclosed by a substantial stone fence; there is on this lot a large spring of good water, which has never been known to dry; a large brick

CURRYIN SHOP.

By a long course of study and practical experience of unlimited extent, Dr. H. has now the gratification of presenting the unfortunate with remedies that have never, since he first introduced them failed to cure the most alarming cases of

GONORRHEA AND SYPHILLIS.
Beneath his treatment, all the horrors of venereal and impure blood, impotence, Scrofula, Gonorrhea, Ulcers, pains and distresses in the regions of Procreation, Inflammation of Bladder and Kidneys, Hydrocele, Abscesses, Humors, Frightful Swellings, and the long train of horrible symptoms attending this class of diseases, are made to become as harmless as the simplest ailments of a child.

SEMINAL WEAKNESS.—Dr. H. devotes a great part of his time to the treatment of those cases caused by secret and solitary habits, which ruin the body and mind, uniting the unfortunate individual for either business or society. Some of the sad and melancholy effects produced by early habits of youth are, weakness of the back and limbs, dizziness of the head, dimness of sight, palpitation of the heart, dyspepsia, nervousness, derangement of the digestive functions, symptoms of consumption, &c. The fearful effects on the mind are such to be dreaded; loss of memory, confusion of ideas, depression of spirits, evil forebodings, aversion of society, self distrust, timidity, &c., are among the evils produced. Such persons should, before contemplating marriage consult a physician of experience and skill and be at once restored to health and happiness.

AGUE AND FEVER cured in 24 hours, warranted.

All letters addressed to Dr. L. Hall, box 1364, Cincinnati, O. Medicines sent to any address safely packed and secured from observation.

THIS institution is provided with competent teachers in the several departments of Drawing and Painting (oil and water colors) Embroidery, French, Vocal music, Piano &c. as well as all the usual branches of a thorough English course. The number of instructors has been increased by the addition of an accomplished teacher from the East, whose services have been secured to commence with the session.

Miss Davis, who has succeeded so admirably in her department, during the past session, will continue to give lessons on the Piano. Mrs. Hand gives her personal attention to the school.

The large and elegant mansion with extensive and beautiful grounds recently purchased, furnish for the school one of the most delightful and healthy locations in the state—provided abundantly with the best of water, and retired from the noise and bustle of the street, with ample room for healthy and invigorating exercise, in the midst of the beautiful in art and the lovely in nature.

From a practical acquaintance with the various modes of instruction adopted by the best teachers in the East and West, and the success of eighteen years experience as an educator, the undersigned hopes, by untiring devotion to the school, to meet the educational wants of the community.

SAVE YOUR ICE
AND DRINK PURE WATER.

Economy, Convenience and Luxury Combined.

WINEHILL'S WATER COOLERS.

THE undersigned is again at hand when the use of ice becomes indispensable to the comfort and health of every family.

The undersigned has for several years past been engaged in the manufacture of the above named article, and has devoted much time and labor in perfecting them. Knowing their great utility, economy and convenience, must bring them into very general use. They have become indispensable to every house-keeper.

The fact has been demonstrated beyond question, that they will preserve ice longer than any of the devices which have been brought out for that purpose. The convenience of always having ICE WATER ready for drinking, is fully appreciated by those who have used this article.

The undersigned has larger and better facilities for manufacturing Water Coolers, than any establishment in the country, and is now prepared to supply them in any quantity.

To Merchants and others buying to sell a liberal discount is made. They can be packed and shipped to any part of the country with perfect safety.
